It all seems funny and short-lived now, those years at JDHS. When you try to remember, the images come thick and fast and the faces are blurred, and it hurts a little to think that things will go on without you. It all went so fast, and you didn't realize that you had so little time until suddenly it was over, and all the things you took for granted for so long are no longer a part of your life. The years of high school run in cycles, but this was your own special cycle, and it seems different and personal and, now that it's over, very precious and brief.

There were the mornings coming to school, and waiting out on the front lawn for the first bell . . . the dew still on the grass, the sound of laughter and talk, the early-morning freshness. There were classes filled with students and the smell of ink and the shuffling of feet; the sinking feeling when you were called on and couldn't answer, and that smug, fine feeling when you had studied and knew all the answers. There was that teacher you just couldn't seem to get along with, and the one who frightened you a little, and the one you liked whose classes were interesting and who made it easy to learn a lot.

Memories are cheap, they come easy . . . the boy you yearned over for so many months or the girl you walked to class but never got the courage to ask for a date . . . that wild, wonderful feeling when one of our backs got the ball and ran for a touchdown while the crowd jumped to their feet and screamed and looked at each other grinning happily . . . the downhearted way the team walked off the field when we had lost . . . the noisy, happy pep rallies . . . the good days and bad.

Around us in the city people went to work in offices and in construction crews and gas stations and oil companies, and sometimes we could hardly wait to finish school and get out into the world. There were times when algebra seemed unbearably dull and Julius Caesar and Macbeth bored us and we wanted to start living life instead of just reading about it. But there were other times when things were going well for us and life seemed good, and we wouldn't trade a minute of it now. All the crushed hopes and wild hopeless dreams and those moments of crisis fade into the happy, brightly-colored, noisy memory of school life.

The sad pleasant sound of the juke-box mingles with the swirl of faces and places and nights and days and you are a captive of memories.

securing knowledge

Mr. Krohn recruits members for the W.L.C. Club.

Today's clothing lesson—"Beat the Bulldogs!!"

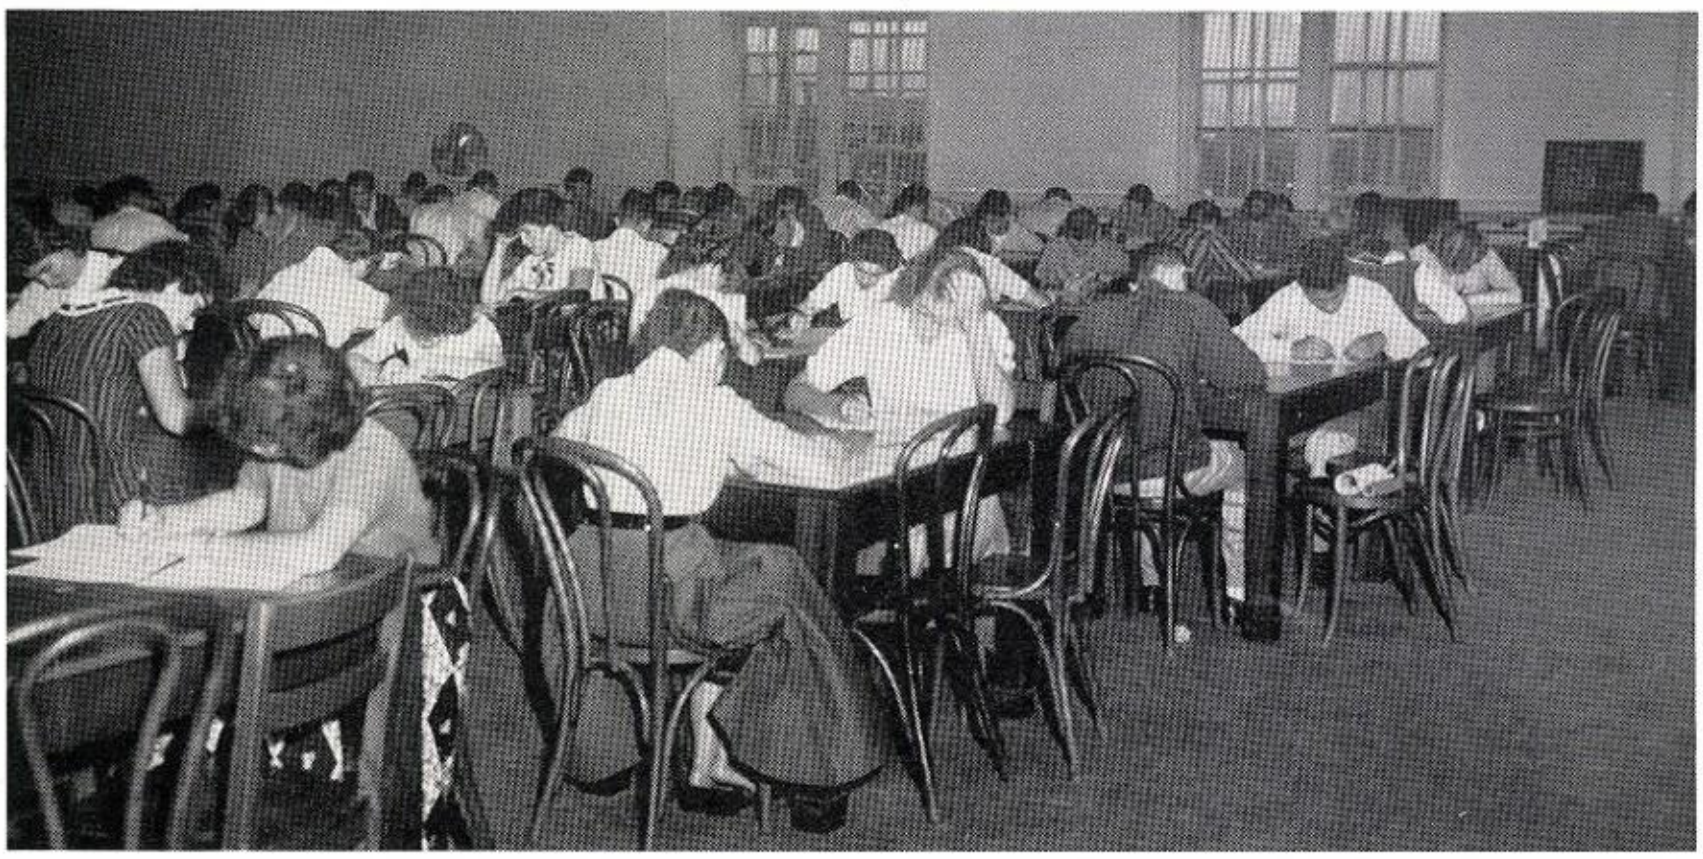
Auditorium programs are educational as well as entertaining.

Our future architects and engineers.

Training for a very important profession.

Girls get helpful hints on personal appearances in Beauty Culture.

Preparing for a career in industry.



Seniors "sweat" their test.

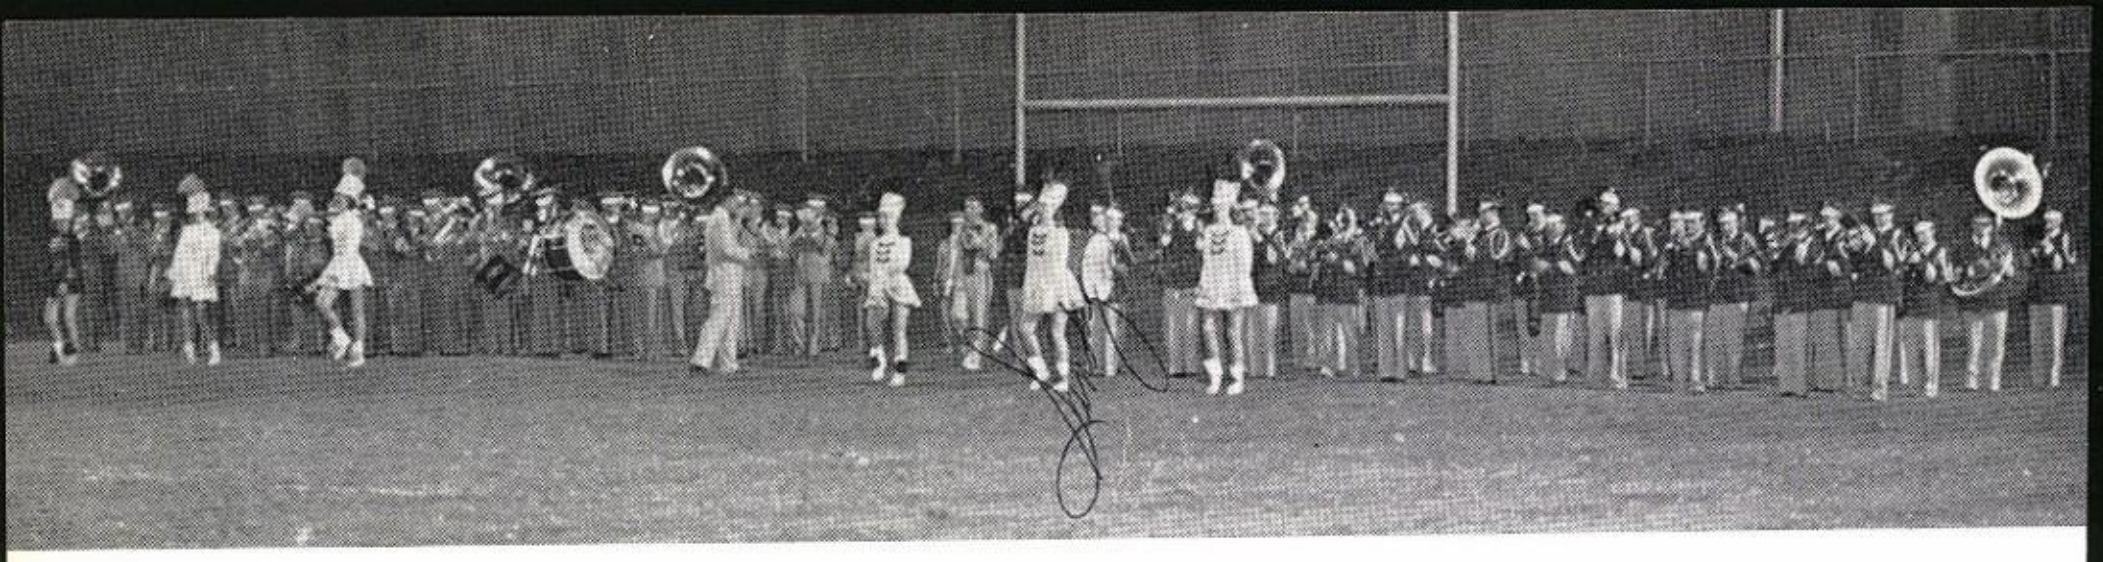
Mr. Lee coaches future stage stars.

Gym helpers help supply the needs of the teachers.

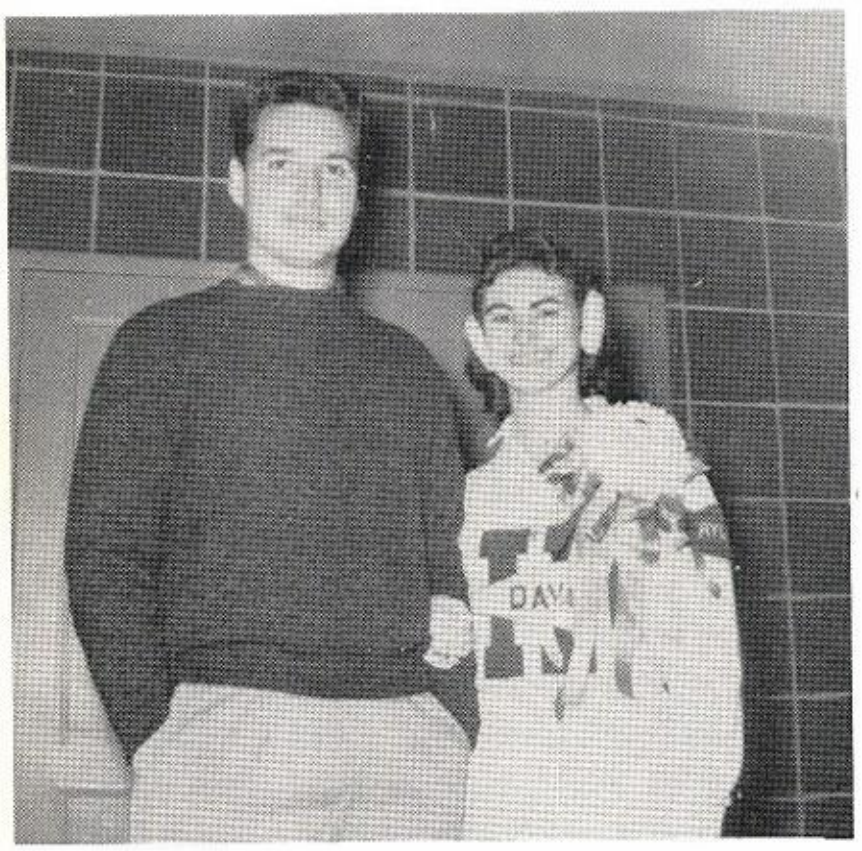
Informal gab sessions are sometimes as helpful as classes.

Lou Ann and Sonja put important notices in teachers' boxes.

Students use our adequately supplied library (in times of distress!).

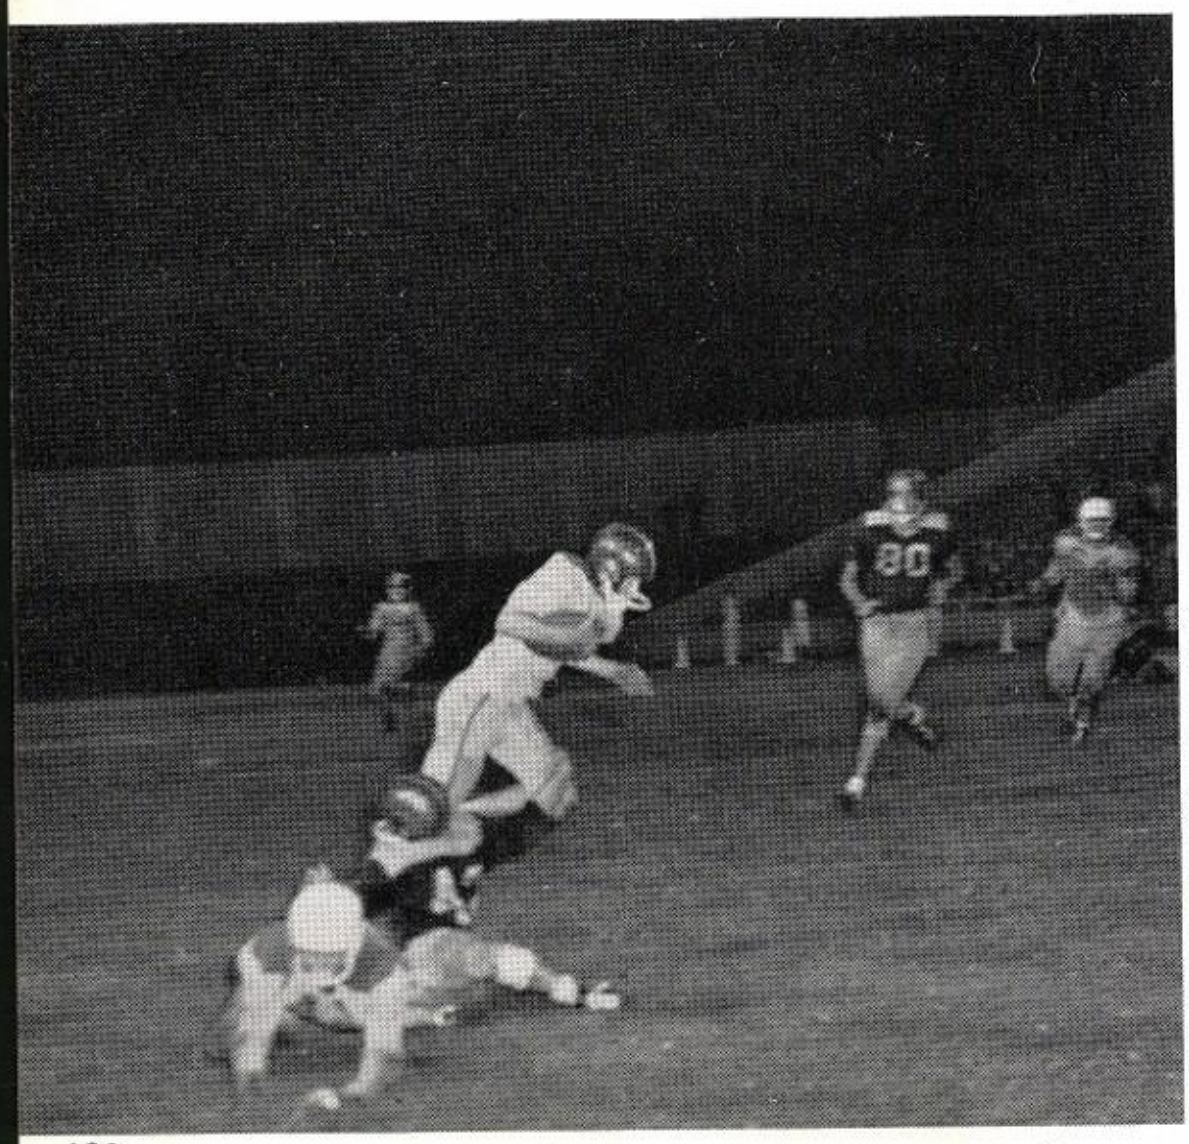


The Davis Band combines talent with Sam Houston to help dedicate Delmar Stadium.

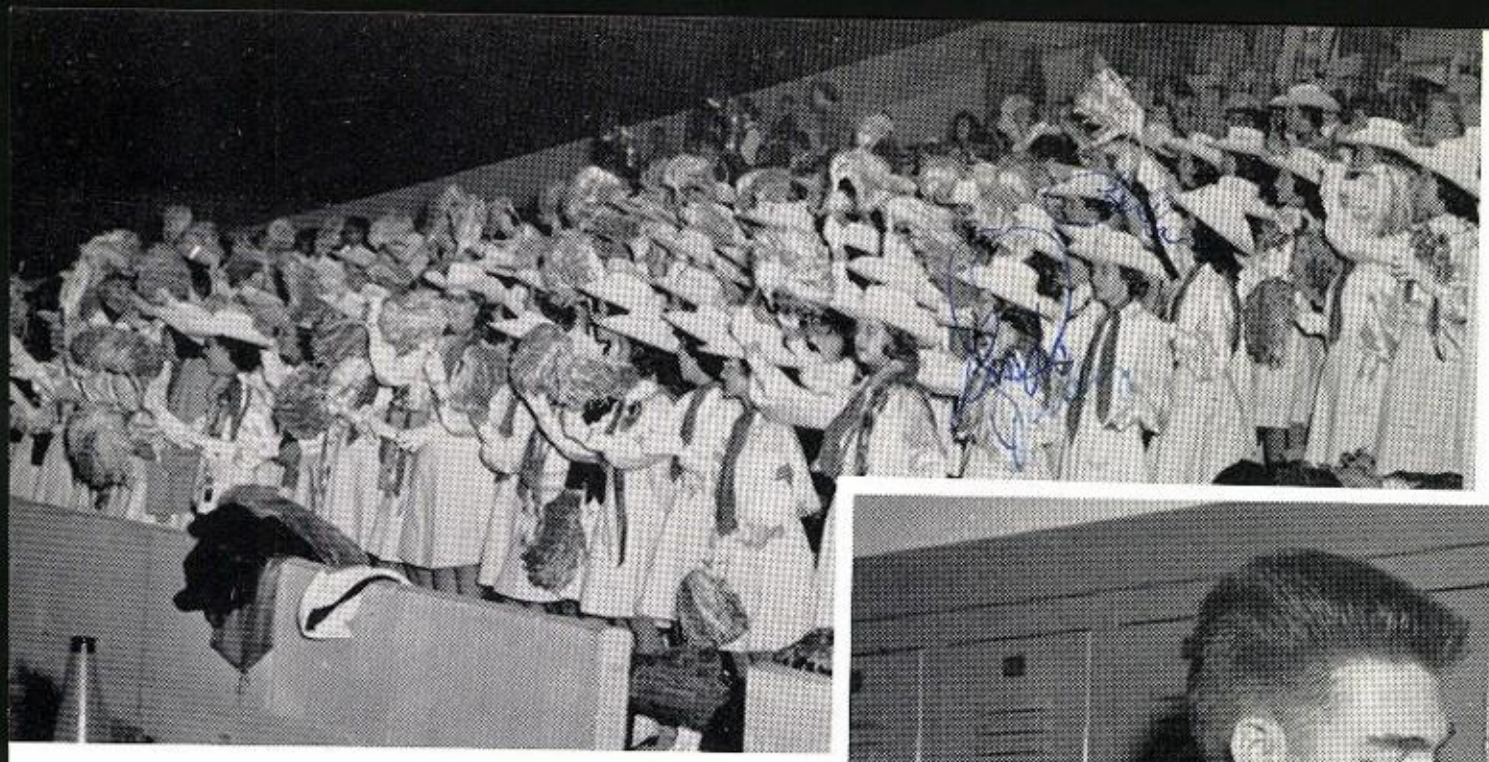


Faylene and Donny arrive at the game.

Aw, Shucks!



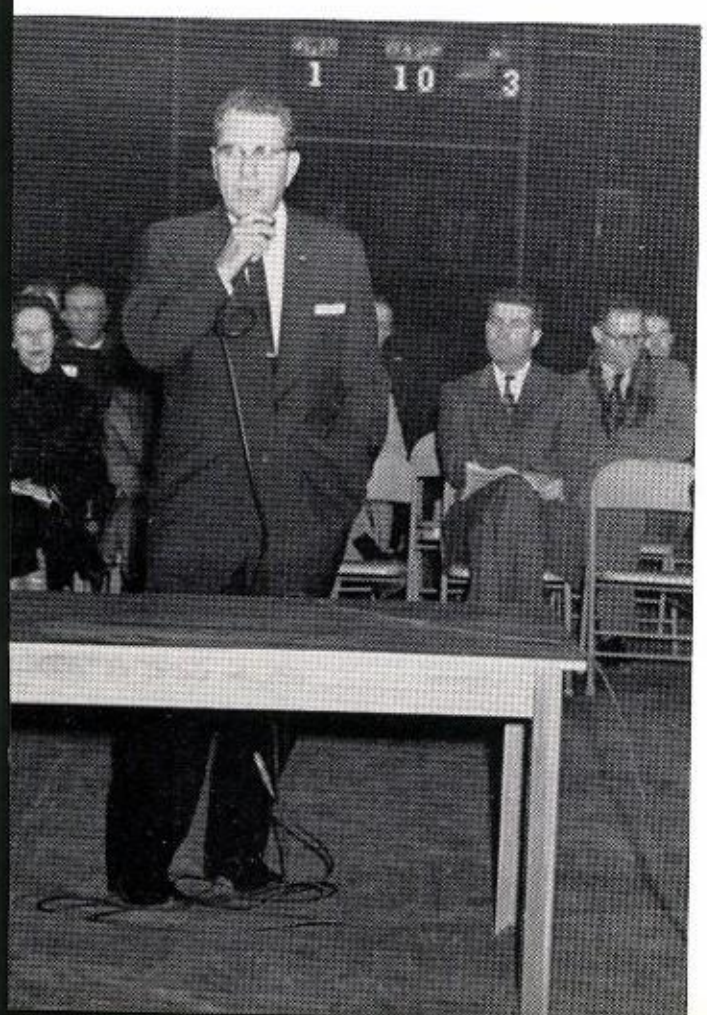
Big D. goes on in spite of Sam Houston's interference.



Our ever-faithful Cadettes.

The cheerleaders take a much needed rest from their busy schedule.

Harvey helps Carol re-adjust her mum.



That dedication service seemed very long . . . didn't it, Mr. Rodgers?

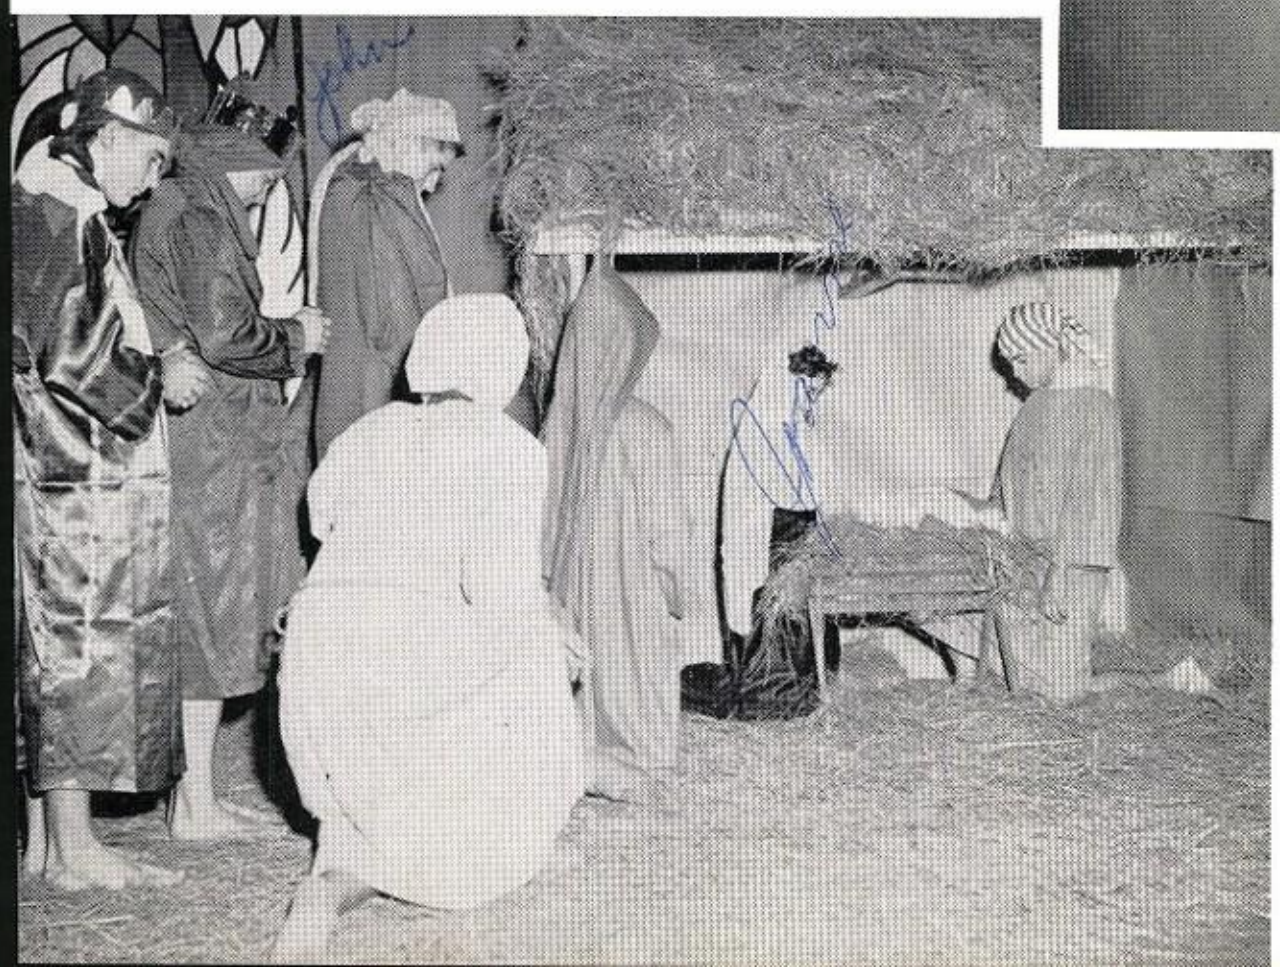
The Cadettes majorettes twirl . . .

Marvin yells . . .

As Freddy pushes on for that all important Sam Houston touchdown.

The carolers add a lot to our Christmas spirit.

Looks like Dolton has it pretty easy these days.

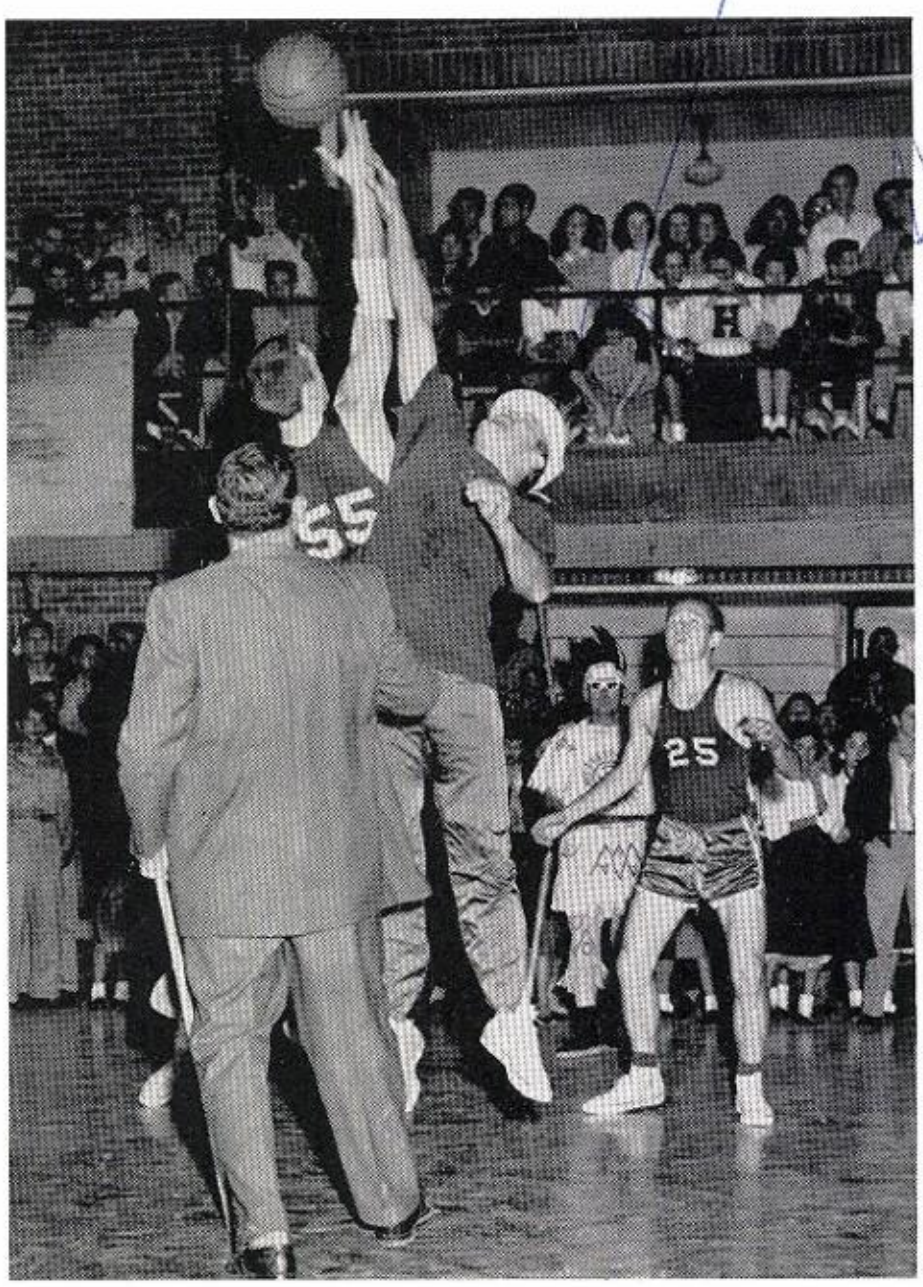


The Drama department aids the Glee Club in the Christmas Story.

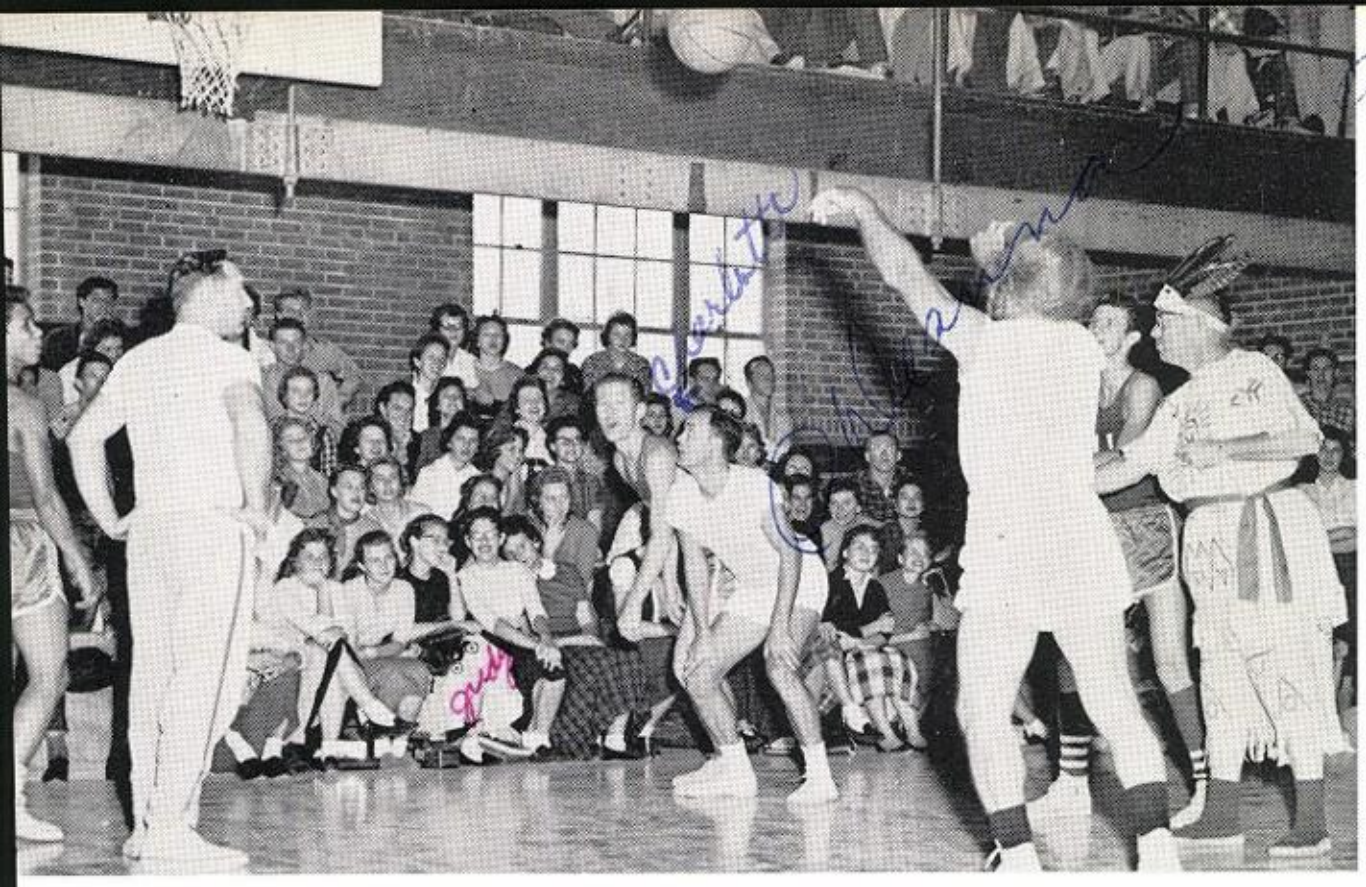
Well, Mrs Noe got it anyway.

Mr. Rodgers is ready for the next foul.

Close your mouth, Ragg!



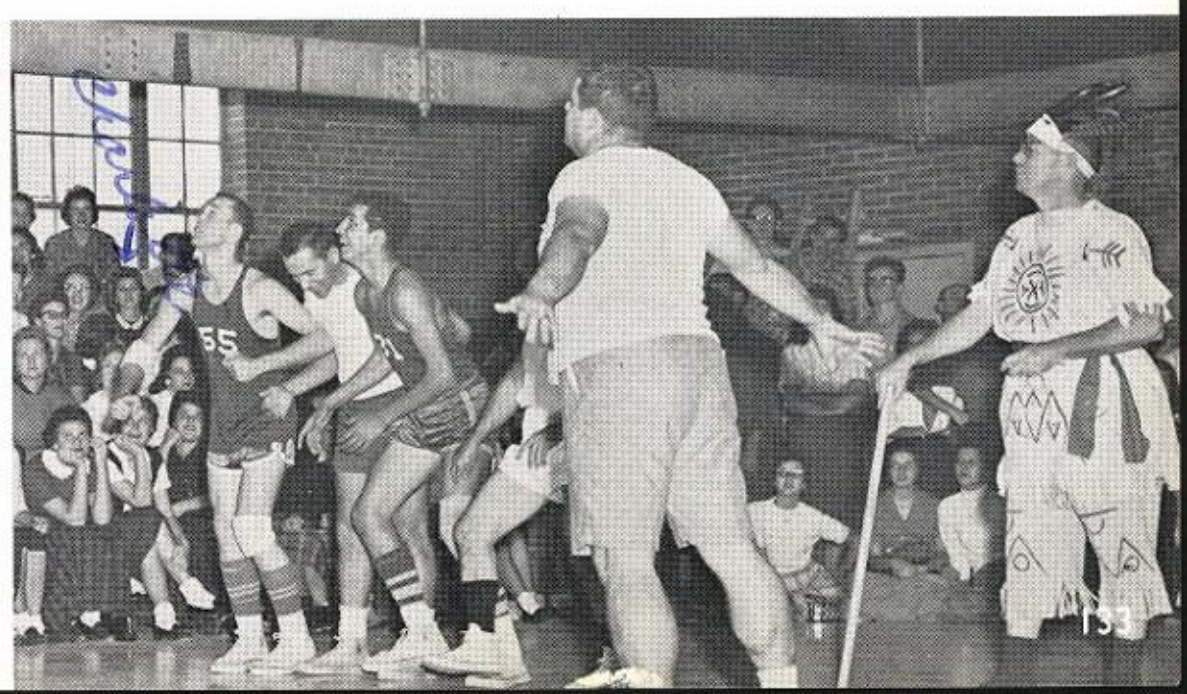
Is that a "V" for victory?

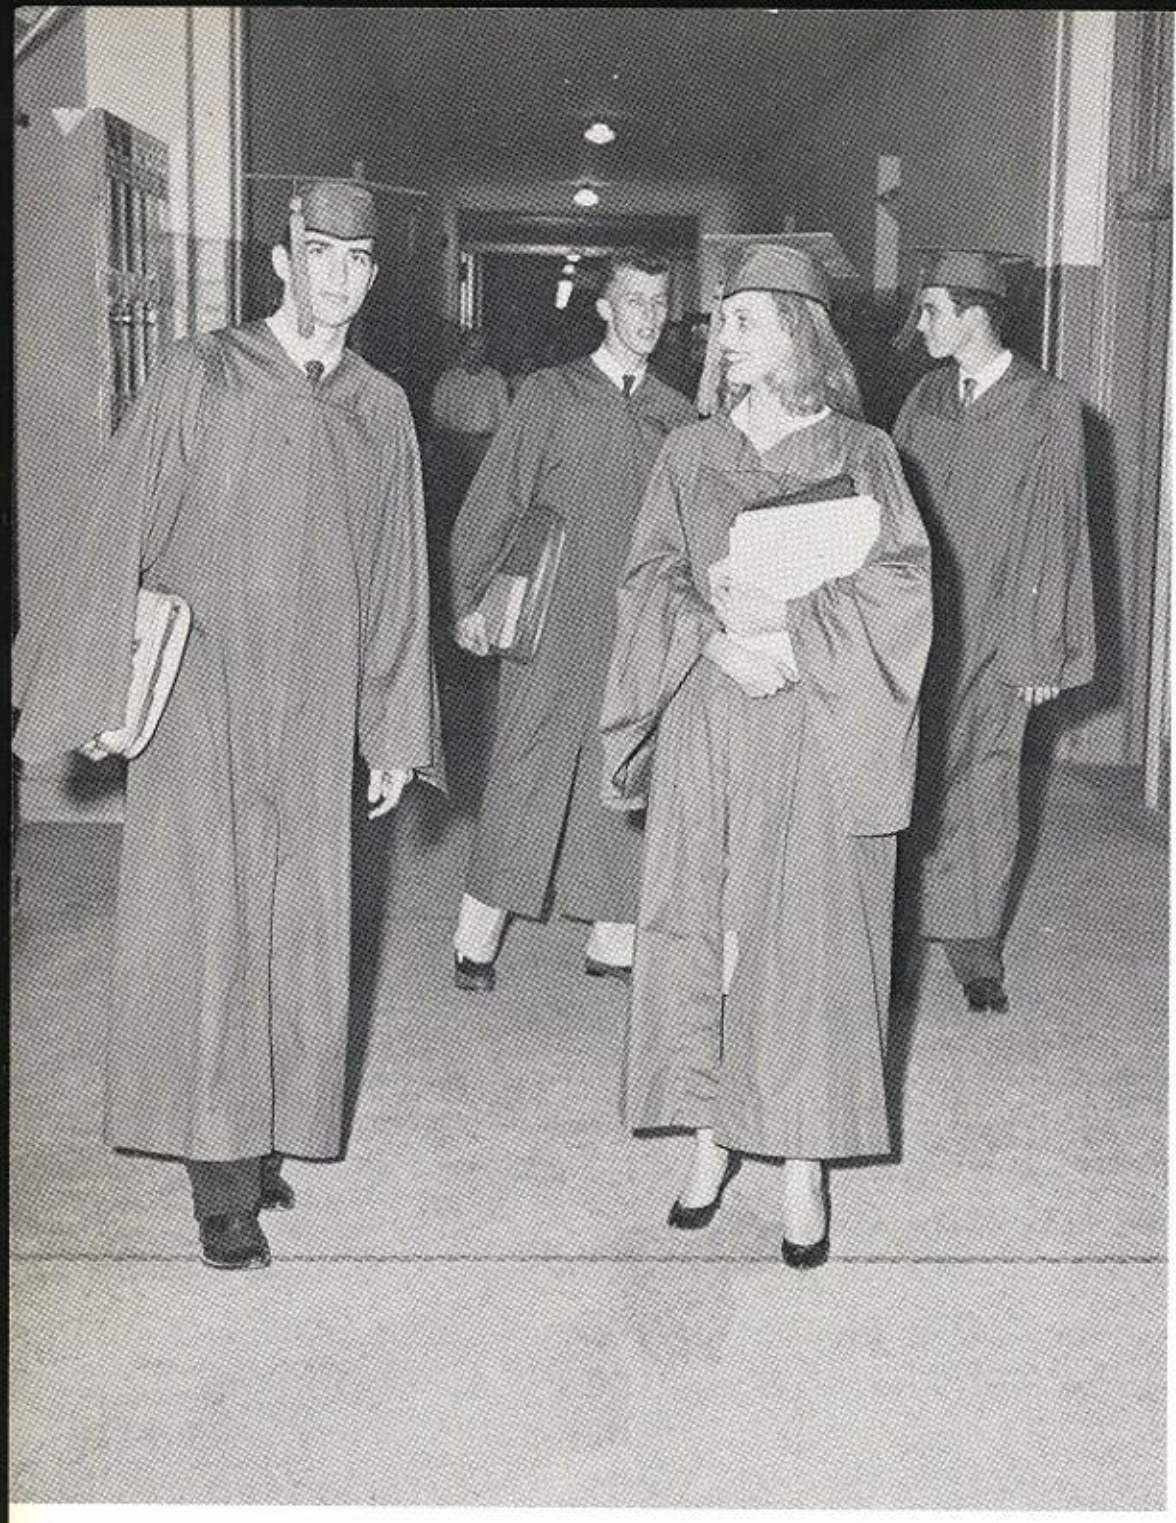


The referee takes two.

The teachers line up for their drill.

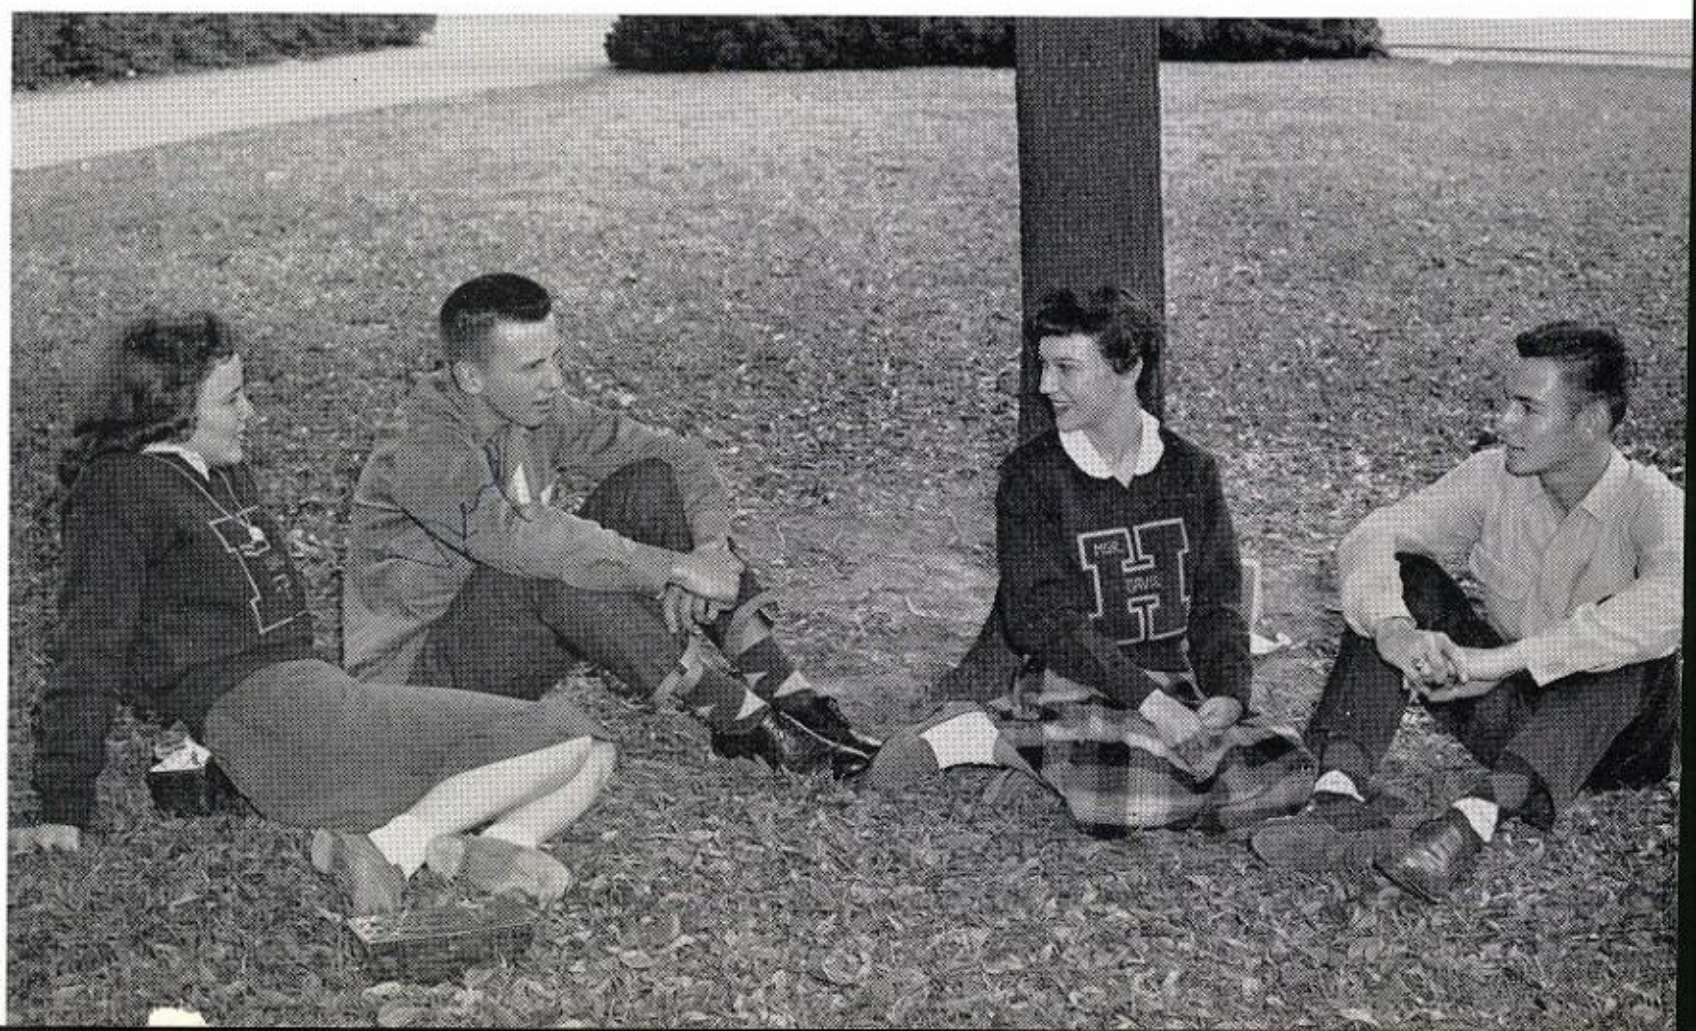
Looks like the boys are finally catching on.



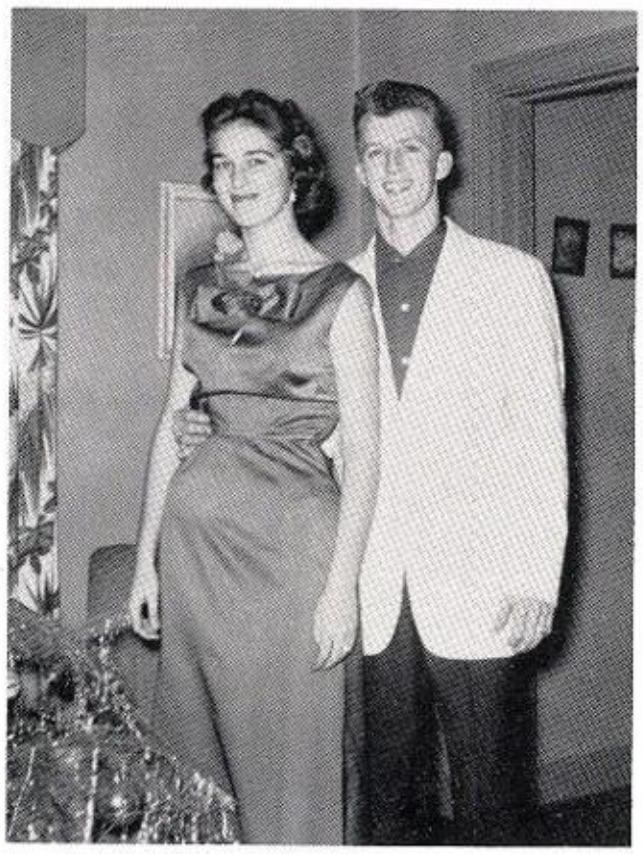


Carol, Donny, Randy, and Rudy show off their caps and gowns on Senior Day.

Jane and Johnny get ready for the Rodeo.



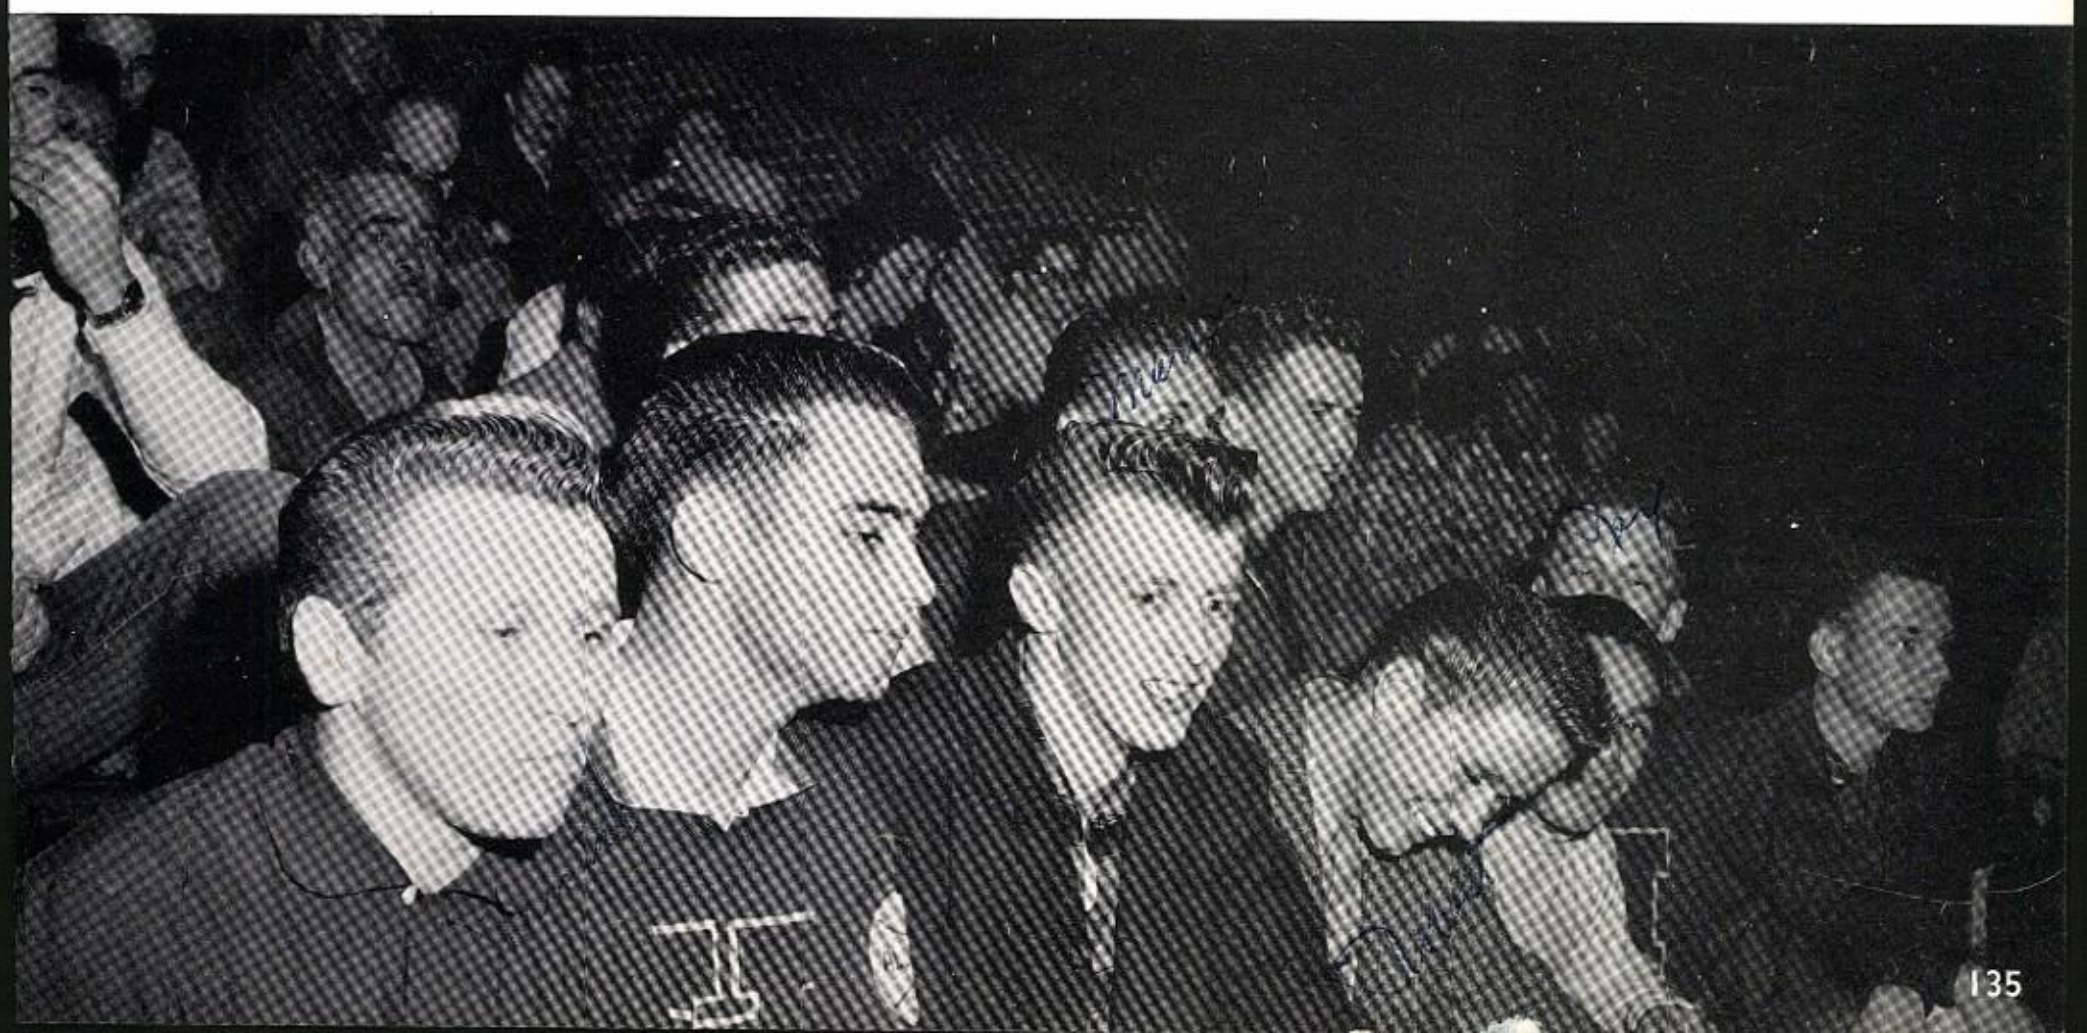
An after-lunch session.



Randy and June are ready to go.

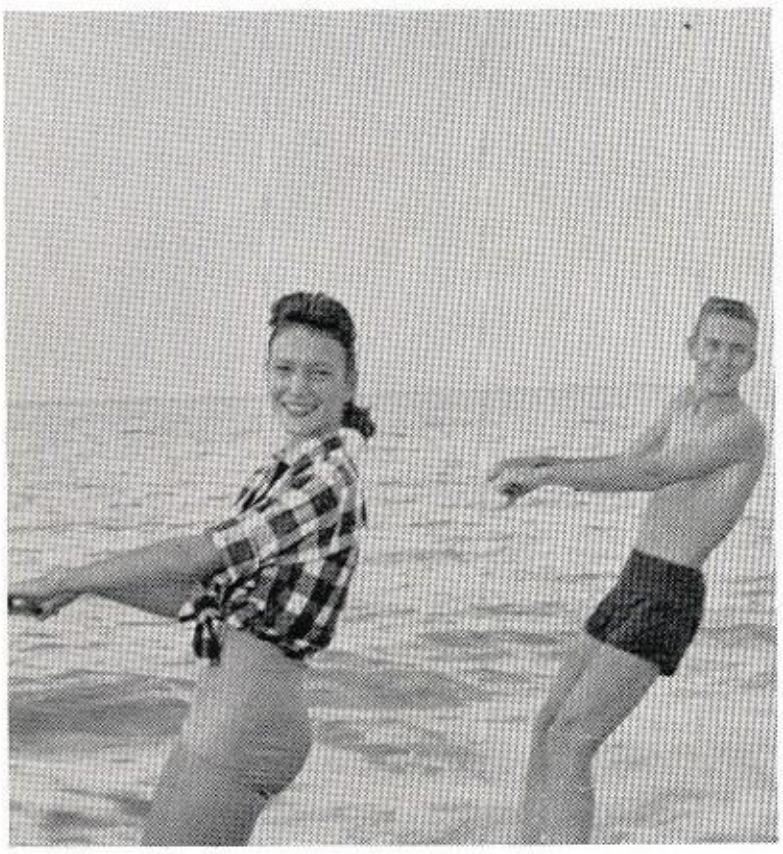
Phew!!

The half-time activities.



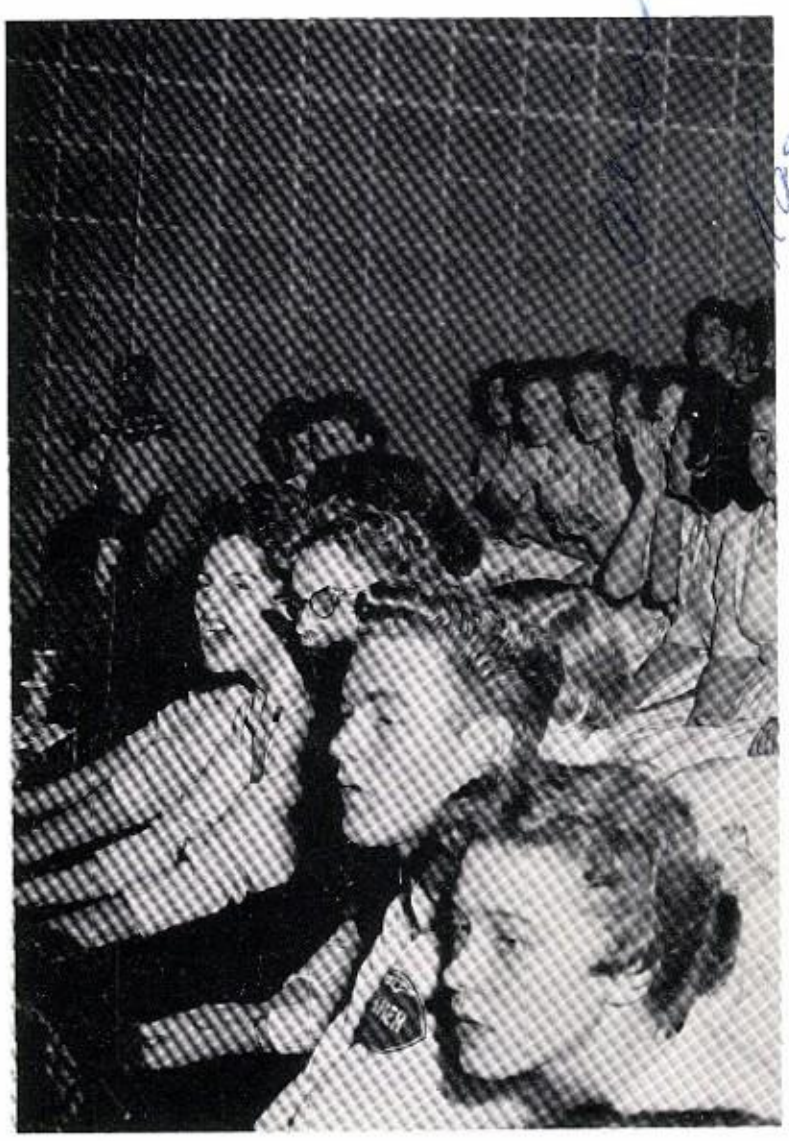
Linda,
You are a very darling girl with a precious personality and I have really enjoyed knowing you these past years.
Love Ya
Kathy

Terry helps prospective majorettes.



Whee!!

At least Linda cared.



Glee Club members prepare for the Purple and Gray Review.

Z-z-z-z-z-z-z

It started out right, anyway.

editors' message

As the year draws to a close, we look back over the hours of work that have gone into this book. Although the days in 317 haven't seemed like work to people not members of our solemn group, we have tried to produce a BEAUVOIR worthy of its readers. This would not have been possible without the help of the members of the faculty, as well as the members of the student body. A special thank you goes to Mrs. Sahualla. It is with the sincere hope that this book will become a treasure of long-lasting memories to each of its readers..

Carolyn Cudd
Co-Editor
1959 BEAUVOIR

Working on the '59 BEAUVOIR has been a pleasant task for me. I'm sure that without the help and cooperation of everyone here at Davis it would not have been nearly so pleasant. So—Thanks; thanks to all of you.

This is your book. We have attempted to record a small part of the events of the past year for you. If in looking through this book you catch a faint glimpse of the dreams and realities, successes and failures of '59, then we will feel that we have accomplished the job we set out to do!

from a brain
Dear pain-ridden Linda,
Hope you don't mind my
sharing this with you.
Remember, it's only a test
and this too shall pass.
By the way, I'm sorry
I'm not around
to wish
you
Best
of
luck
always,
Johnny

Dear Linda,
You are one of
the finest girls
I have written
to. When writing something to you I became just thinking
of you and
wondering
what you would write
back.
